Port Antonio

Port Antonio is located on the north-east coast of Jamaica, about 100 kilometres north-east of Kingston. Port Antonio is home to palm trees and orchids found nowhere else in the world. Port Antonio is the third largest port in Jamaica and is mainly used for shipping bananas and coconuts. The port is a tourist attraction and tourism is an important source of income for the local economy. The first tourists came to Port Antonio in the mid-19th century. Banana carriers brought them from the USA. Today, the palm-lined main street is the bustling centre of the old coastal town.
